

MAIL SACK FROM THE LOCAL
POSTOFFICE FOUND RIFLED

Robbers Stole Pouch Either in Transit From Postoffice to the Depot or at the Depot—No Registered Letters Were in Sack.

Early Sunday morning, a young man by the name of Hickerson reported that he had found a rifled mail sack near the L. & N. railroad, about one mile north of the city. When the information reached the postoffice, Mr. Hunt Perry went to the place indicated by the report. The leather strap that closes the sack was cut, the sack open and the mail scattered around.

Some of the letters were opened, but whether any letters with money in them were gotten is not known. There were no registered letters in the pouch. The pouch was dispatched by the mail messenger from the Winchester postoffice at 7 a. m., Thursday. It was northern mail that goes south on the L. & N. at 11:09, and is transferred to the north bound train on the same road that passes here at 5 o'clock, a. m. The pouch was evidently stolen either in transit from the postoffice to the depot, or at the depot.

The matter has been taken up by the government offices, and every effort will be made to find the guilty party or parties.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM SERIOUS ACCIDENT

Mr. and Mrs. Abe Renick Are Thrown From Buggy. Horse Frightened and Starts to Run.

While returning to their home in the country late Saturday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Abe Renick had a narrow escape from serious injuries by the horse they were driving running off and upsetting the buggy in which they were riding.

The accident occurred on the Lexington pike only a short distance from town. One of the shafts on the buggy became unhooked and this excited the animal and he started to running.

Mr. Renick who was doing the driving, seeing that the horse was getting from under his control, tried to steer him into a fence and in so doing the buggy was upset.

Mrs. Renick's head struck a mail box and she was knocked unconscious and a deep gash was cut over her right eye. Mr. Renick sustained a wrenched back and numerous bruises but neither his nor Mrs. Renick's wounds are regarded as serious.

Mrs. Renick was taken to the home of Mrs. Ed. Pace, opposite the point where the accident occurred and Dr. Ishmael was summoned and dressed her wounds. She remained there all night, being hurt too bad to be taken home. She was removed to her home in the country Sunday afternoon.

A telephone message from their home Monday morning stated that they were both resting easy and doing as well as could be expected.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—The temporary roll call of the House of Representatives for the Sixty first Congress has been completed and published. According to this publication the next House will consist of 219 Republicans and 172 Democrats, a total of 391, as against a total of 389 in the House during the last session, of whom 223 were Republicans and 166 Democrats.

The result is a net loss of four from the Republican side and a net gain of six on the Democratic side, the discrepancy being due to present vacancies. All told, the Democrats gained seventeen districts and the Republicans twelve.

CELEBRATING HIS GOLDEN JUBILEE

Pope Pius X. Was Ordained a Priest of Catholic Church 50 Years Ago.

ROME, Nov. 16.—Fifty years of service to the Catholic Church, marked by this date, have not crushed out the gentleness and almost simple boyishness of Pope Pius X., who is today celebrating his golden jubilee, having been ordained priest half a century ago.

Priesthood, Bishop, Cardinalate, have each seemed to play their part in mellowing his life into gentleness that well befits the popular idea of his station.

Giuseppe Sarto, born in 1838, in a soldier's lowly family, was educated at Treviso and Padua, and spent his whole life, until his elevation to the Papacy, in Northern Italy. The Italian Government objected to his elevation to the Patriarchy of Venice in 1893, claiming the right to name the patriarch. An argument ensued, in which the Government yielded because of the extremely satisfactory personality of Sarto.

His modesty and simplicity won him the love of all. August 3, 1903, after six fruitless ballots, he was elected Pope, after fighting against the nomination on the ground that he desired to lead a simple life outside the walls of the prisonlike Vatican.

Even officials of the Italian Government have described him, not as a father to his church, but as a friend to mankind.

Mrs. Matt Adams and her guest, Mme. Hiddings, of Washington, D. C., were entertained this afternoon by Mrs. Kate Millward, of Lexington.

TSZE HSI AN IS OFFICIALLY DEAD

Troops Guard the Foreign Legations and Great Uprising Feared.

Peking, Nov. 16.—Tsze Hsi An, the dowager empress of China, the autocratic head of the government, which she directed without successful interference since 1861 and without protest since 1881, is dead.

The announcement of the dowager empress' death was official, and followed closely upon the announcement that Kuang Hsu, the emperor, had died, but it is believed that the deaths of both the emperor and the dowager empress occurred a considerable time before that set down in the official statements.

An edict just issued places upon the throne Prince Pu-Yi, the 3-year-old son of Prince Chun, the regent of the empire, in accordance with a promise given by the dowager empress soon after the marriage of Prince Chun in 1903. An edict issued on Friday made Pu-Yi heir presumptive.

The foreign legations have been notified by the foreign board of the death of the emperor and the succession of Prince Pu-Yi. Troops have been in readiness for several days to quell any disorders that might arise on the death of Kuang Hsu, and the possibility of uprisings was made greater because of the fact that the death of the dowager empress was known to be close at hand. Two divisions of troops have been held in reserve, and these are now stationed in various quarters of the city. Twenty gendarmes were dispatched to guard the approaches to the legations, but up to the present the duties of the forces have been slight. It was announced that the legation guard was ordered out at "the special call of the legations on account of the emperor's death."

Deathbed observances of 3,000 years ago marked the passing of the emperor and dowager. They died alone and unattended, although surrounded by circles of abject spectators, who remained a rod distant, as on account of the sacred persons of their majesties they could not be approached. The emperor died as he had lived, without ministrations of whatever kind or scientific aid. For months he had refused to permit the services of foreign physicians, and although it was stated that he had gone back to the old form of medical treatment, it is believed that latterly he received no treatment at all.

Tse Hsi An (or western empress), was born Nov. 17, 1834. She was the child of poor people, who lived in Peking. At an early age, following a common practice in China, she was sold as a slave by her parents on account of their poverty. She became the property of a famous general who, enchanted with her great beauty, adopted her and offered her as a present to the reigning emperor, Hsien-Feng. She so charmed the emperor by her looks and intelligence that he made her his secondary wife, and on her bearing him a son, the future emperor, Tung-Chih, raised her to the first rank. On his death she became the regent of the empire, administering the national affairs with more vigor than any of her predecessors. Her authority was complete over about 14,000 officials and over the welfare and lives of the vast majority of the inhabitants of China, who number close to 270,000,000.

Among the populace she was feared and hated, principally because of her treatment of the emperor, for whom the enlightened and the common people had a sympathetic liking. She was commonly referred to by the sobriquet "the old Buddha," and her character in the eyes of the masses was that of the tyrant of the emperor. She was a law unto herself. She violated the constitution of the dynasty that forbids a woman ruler, and broke the sacred customs given by the sages. She relentlessly ordered all betrothals and marriages in the imperial household, family and imperial court, and supervised scrupulously the conduct of individuals.

EIGHT KILLED IN RACE RIOT

Governor Haskell Rushes Troops to Scene—Negro Shoots An Officer.

Oklmulgee, Okla., Nov. 16.—Eight persons were killed and ten others wounded in a fight between Jim Deckard, a negro desperado, and law officers.

The dead: Edgar Robinson, sheriff of Okmulgee county; Henry Klaber, assistant chief of police of Okmulgee; two negroes named Chapman, brothers; Jim Deckard, negro; three unidentified negroes.

The wounded: Steve Grayson, Indian boy, fatally beaten; Vic Farr, chief of police, shot through shoulder; deputy sheriff, name not learned, arm broken; seven others, slightly wounded.

The disturbance began at the St. Louis & San Francisco railroad station, where Jim Deckard engaged in a fight with an Indian boy, Steve Grayson, and beat him into insensibility with a rock. Friends of Grayson notified the police, and when Policeman Klaber went to the station Deckard fled to his house nearby, barricaded himself in, and when Klaber approached Deckard shot and instantly killed him. Sheriff Robinson formed a posse in a few minutes and hurried to the scene. Part of this posse was made up of a group of negroes, whom the sheriff commissioned as deputies. As the posse approached the house Deckard opened fire with a rifle, firing as rapidly as he could load his weapon. The sheriff fell first, instantly killed.

Then five of the negro deputies were slain. Deckard's house was soon surrounded by a frenzied mob of armed men. Fire was set to a house just north of Deckard's. Volleys were poured into Deckard's house and he was shot down. He was seen to roll over on the floor, strike a match and set fire to his own house, which was soon a roaring furnace, in which his body was baked. Deckard evidently had a large quantity of ammunition stored in his house, for many cartridges exploded while the house was burning.

Governor Haskell at Guthrie was notified of the battle and of the bad feeling between whites and negroes that had grown out of it and threatened a race riot. The governor at once ordered the militia company at Muskogee to prepare to go to Okmulgee, and a special train was made ready to carry the troops, the governor remaining at his office to keep in touch with the situation.

MITCHELL MAY RUN

For Presidency of United Mine Workers Against Tom Lewis.

Denver, Colo., Nov. 16.—Nearly all the delegates to the twenty-eighth annual convention of the American Federation of Labor made an excursion to the mountains near Denver as guests of local unions. Frequent reference was made in conversation among the excursionists to the fact that it was the twenty-seventh anniversary of the founding of the organization, now comprising 1,586,885 members, of which Samuel Gompers has been president 26 years.

One of the expected controversies of the convention has been averted by the announcement of President Thomas L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America that he was not a candidate for the vice presidency of the federation in opposition to John Mitchell. It is understood that Mr. Mitchell will run against Lewis for the presidency of the mine workers, from which he retired a year ago on account of poor health.

ACCIDENT REVEALS SMUGGLERS' PLOT

★ Chinamen From Canada Drowned at Buffalo.

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 1.—A motor boat containing ten Chinamen and three white men was wrecked on the breakwall off the foot of Michigan street. Six of the Chinamen were drowned or dashed to death against the rock-ribbed seawall. The four survivors were rescued by the crew of a police boat. The three white men escaped and the federal authorities and local detective force are scouring the city endeavoring to round up men suspected of being engaged in the smuggling of Chinamen into this country from Canada.

At first it was supposed the white men perished, but from one of the surviving Chinamen, it was learned that they succeeded in clambering over the slippery rocks, and fled leaving the Chinamen to their fate. The statement of an elevator watchman that a second motor boat left the shore side of the breakwall just before dawn is a clue upon which the authorities are now working and which may lead to arrests.

Rhaca, N. Y., Nov. 11.—Dean Thomas Frederick Crane, of the Cornell university faculty, who has been connected with the university for forty-one years, resigned his position and his resignation was accepted by the board of trustees. It will take effect at the end of the academic year.

MORE PIPE LINES

The Crying Need of Western Oil Fields.

New York, Nov. 11.—That stoppage of the practice of rebate giving and taking as between the railroads and oil shippers has made the establishment and successful operation of independent refineries in the western oil fields practicable was the declaration of William Geisler, a Kansas oil producer, a witness in the hearing of the government's suit to dissolve the Standard Oil Company.

Other witnesses who gave testimony agreed that the crying need of the field was for new pipe lines, the construction of which they declared was prevented by ultra-restrictive federal regulation.

Not Andree's Grave.

Stockholm, Nov. 11.—Not all Arctic experts here believe the report that the grave of Professor S. A. Andree, the Swedish explorer, who in 1897 made an attempt to reach the North pole in a balloon, has been found on the coast of Labrador. Professor Nanthorst and Captain Nilsson, the best known Arctic authorities, said they did not think it possible that Andree's balloon could have reached Labrador.

THEATRE DESTROYED

Within Hour After Large Audience Had Been Dismissed.

New York, Nov. 11.—Less than an hour after a large audience had left the Park theatre, a historic Brooklyn playhouse, fire was discovered and an hour later the building was in ruins. Mrs. Mary Spooner, head of the Spooner Stock Company, which was filling an engagement at the theatre, and several members of the company, were in their dressing rooms and the office, but they escaped without injury.

The loss will be about $125,000, covered by insurance. The building was erected in 1860.

Fewer Bachelors, Less Comfort.

It is a curious thing that we are always worrying bachelors to change their state. What we should do without them heaven alone knows. Comfort would be at a discount, and we should be crying aloud for them in no time.—Ladies' Pictorial.

To Make and Keep Friends.

To make and keep friends is the great art of life, yet the easiest and simplest thing in the world. If we learn to ignore the thin films of diversity in training, station, interest and aim, and go straight to the heart of our fellow men, we are sure of finding a cordial response.—William Hyde.

INTRIGUE IS SCENTED

In Persistent Rumors of Von Buelow's Resignation.

Berlin, Nov. 11.—Chancellor Von Buelow and his friends are supposing the political situation that if the chancellor should retire after his audience at Kiel next Monday with Emperor William, it will be because his majesty was not willing to concur in the declaration made in the Reichstag by the chancellor on Tuesday that it was essential that the emperor be more reserved in his utterances in the future. Prince Von Buelow has taken up the position that he represents the entire people on this question and that because of this he is bound to interpret the national will to the sovereign, standing or falling by his decision.

There is excellent authority for the statement that the rumors of the chancellor's immediate resignation circulating in Berlin and abroad, together with the use of the names of certain men as his possible successor, are connected with the intrigues against the prince and in the interests of his rivals for his position.

Dollivar Denies Rumor.

Lawton, Okla., Nov. 11.—"I never have announced that I expect soon to resign as senator from Iowa, and I do not intend to make such an announcement," said Senator J. P. Dolliver when questioned regarding a statement attributed to him in a speech at Hobart.

BRAMLEY REFUSES TO IDENTIFY CHECK

Columbus Graft Cases Develop Interesting Features.

Columbus, O., Nov. 11.—M. F. Bramley, president of the Cleveland Trinidad Paving Company, who several months ago pleaded guilty to several indictments for bribing city officials, and who with Superintendents Nelson Cannon and Henry C. Lang, of the paving company, was regarded as a leading witness for the state, took the stand in the trial of Fred Lied, former director of the board of public service, charged with accepting a $1,000 bribe from Lang, and although substantiating testimony given by Cannon previously regarding conferences he had held with Lied here when Cannon said Bramley arranged to bribe the former official, Bramley refused to answer questions concerning conversations or anything that passed between himself and Lied. He said he declined because his answers might tend to incriminate him. Using his constitutional privilege, he refused to identify a check or his endorsement thereof for $2,000, which Cannon had testified had been cashed after Bramley had turned it over to Lang and half the proceeds given to Lied and the remainder to Fred Immel, Lied's colleague on the service board, now serving a term in the penitentiary for taking a bribe. Cannon said Superintendent Lang of the company had given Lied his share and on the stand Lang admitted it, but declared he didn't know the money was given as a bribe.

Lawyers for the defense secured a statement from Lang that he didn't know it was wrong to lie, but later the prosecution brought out an explanation from Lang that he referred to conflicting pleas he had entered some months ago to bribery charges. First he pleaded not guilty then reversed the plea and was fined.

REPUBLICAN ELECTED

To Congress in Spite of Protest That He is Plain Business Man.

New York, Nov. 11.—A Republican who was elected to congress in North Carolina and who bemoans the fact, is in New York. He is John Motley Morehead, a well-to-do woolen mill operator, who reluctantly accepted the nomination, refused to campaign and did not expect to win, but when the votes were counted, had defeated Attorney Brooks, the Democratic candidate, by more than 400 votes, in the fifth district. The unwilling statesman is now on his way to Washington to obtain a residence for himself and family, still persisting that he is a "business man" and ignorant of politics.

Suicide Burned Up His Hoard.

Helena, Mont., Nov. 11.—Albert Berger, a former Alaska miner, just before committing suicide at Canyon Ferry, threw $2,000 in postoffice money orders, payable to himself, in the stove, declaring the money was in the hands of the government and no one would quarrel over it after he was dead.

Explosion Wrecks Train.

Kansas City, Nov. 11.—A terrific explosion in the glazing room of the Excelsior Powder company at Bodson, 10 miles south of Kansas City, wrecked that part of the plant and damaged a Kansas City Southern passenger train, inbound for Kansas City, and standing on the tracks nearby. One person was killed, a man employed in the powder works, and 35 persons were injured. Most of the injured were on the train which was not badly damaged. Their hurts, with the exception of one person, are considered slight. Soon after the explosion arrangements were made to bring the dead and injured into Kansas City.

STATE WELL SATISFIED

With Evidence Presented at Trial of Ray Langmuir.

Laposte, Ind., Nov. 11.—The state is well satisfied with the evidence which was presented for the purpose of proving that the four bodies removed from the ruins of the Gunness house on April 23 were those of Mrs. Belle Gunness and her three children. Although Judge Richter permitted the coroner's verdict to go before the jury and later informed the jurors that they should disregard the verdict as being proof of the death of Mrs. Gunness, the prosecution is getting before the jury the evidence contained in the report and upon which Coroner Mack based his conclusion and verdict that the adult female body was that of Mrs. Belle Gunness and that the smaller bodies were those of her three children.

The exhibits of the day included the rings taken from the fingers of Mrs. Gunness and the children, a piece of cloth found clenched in the hand of one of the children, three pieces of bone, identified by Coroner Mack, Sheriff Smutzer and Drs. Long, Wilcox and Gray, and photographs of the scenes of the burned house and the bodies.

Knights of Labor Elect.

Washington, Nov. 11.—The closing session of the general assembly of the Knights of Labor was held and officers elected as follows: John W. Hayes, general master workman, Washington, D. C.; I. H. Sanderson, general worthy foreman, Toronto, Canada; I. D. Chamberlain, general secretary-treasurer, Pueblo, Colo.; I. B. Armstrong, Lynn, Mass.; Frank J. McGuire, and A. J. Zoller of Newark, N. J., members of the executive board. The next meeting of the assembly will be held in St. Louis, Mo., in 1910.

METCALF RESIGNS AS HEAD OF NAVY

Poor Health Renders Continuance Impossible.

Washington, Nov. 11.—Victor H. Metcalf has tendered to President Roosevelt his resignation as secretary of the navy and the same has been accepted with great reluctance by the president.

For more than a year the fact that Mr. Metcalf has suffered serious illness has been well known at the navy department. Formerly of vigorous health, his friends expected that he would be able to regain his strength, but constantly recurring illness has convinced him that the only course for him to pursue is to sever his connection with all active work.

Mr. Metcalf has suffered from a nervous breakdown that has rendered it impossible for him to remain at his desk for any length of time, and the chronic nature of his trouble has caused him to abandon hope of recovery while burdened with the cares of office. On April 15 last he went to California to view the Atlantic battleship fleet. He took a long vacation, hoping to be permanently benefited thereby, returning here September 1. Upon his resumption of official duty, his illness promptly recurred and he frankly told the president that he could not remain in the cabinet.

COLLEGE ATHLETICS

Severely Scored by President Ellis of Ohio University.

Columbus, O., Nov. 11.—College athletics, as now carried on, came in for criticism by Dr. Alston Ellis, president of the Ohio university, at Athens, in his annual report, which has reached Governor Harris. Flag rushes, hazing and similar college pastimes are classed as "fooleries" with the declaration that they would not be mentioned in the report if it were not for the fact that they are attracting such widespread attention and criticism.

Relative to athletics Dr. Ellis writes: "The whole thing is becoming too expensive, too time-wasting and too strenuous for the physical well-being of those who participate in the games or contests. There are yet people old fashioned enough to question whether all the good football has done is of the value of one human life. The whole athletic effort in college as I see it, is a kind of necessary evil. The one redeeming feature is that they may act as a kind of escape valve for a certain amount of animal activity that might be employed in more questionable directions. Manhood is shamed and decency outraged when college students with such splendid opportunities engage in the dangers and barbarities of the class rush. Manly sport never descends to outrage upon the weak and unsuspecting."

Dr. Ellis approves the move to drive fraternities from the high schools and in fact all schools below the college and university.

Both Coopers Indicted.

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 11.—The grand jury of Davidson county returned a true bill in which Colonel Duncan B. Cooper, his son, Robin J. Cooper, and ex-Sheriff John D. Sharp are jointly charged with the murder of ex-Senator E. W. Carmack and in which Sharp is also indicted on the charge of being an accessory before the fact. The names of six witnesses appear on the back of the indictment.

Tobacco Sells High

Only 72,000 Pounds Sold. Prices Range From 11 to 29 Cents On Break.

LEXINGTON, Ky., N.—Ton prices were received for tobacco sold at the various warehouses in this city yesterday morning.

The top price paid by the Blue Grass Tobacco Company of this city for a lot of tobacco sold at the Burley Loose Tobacco warehouse. They paid 29 cents a pound for one lot of tobacco. At this house 17,000 pounds of the raw material was sold at prices ranging from 11 1/4 to 29 cents a pound, with an average of 18 1/2 cents.

At the Growers' Warehouse the prices were almost as good on the 45,000 pounds sold. Here the top price was 25 1/2 cents a pound and the lowest price was 12 cents. The average was 17 1/2 cents, while at Shelburne's Warehouse 10,000 pounds were sold at an average of 17 cents a pound.

The bidding was spirited and from the way prices soared it was plain to be seen that buying agents had been instructed by their various managers to get all the product possible.

Where "scraps" would formerly have sold from 4 to 7 1/2 cents, they brought from 11 to 14 cents, and in each grade there was a comparative jump in prices.

Unlike the sales of last fall and winter and the year before, the offerings of the week offered at the three houses being only 72,000.

First Election of Precinct Committees to Be Held November Twenty-First.

Saturday, November 21, committeemen from every precinct in the State of Kentucky will be chosen by the Democratic voters of their respective precincts and a complete reorganization by counties made. At the last Democratic State Convention, held in Lexington last June, new rules regarding the election of committeemen, were adopted and the elections of next week will be held under these rules, thus giving every voter a voice in the matter. The State Central Committee, desire that all shall know the method by which the committeemen must be elected. The rules pertaining to the election are given herewith:

"Precinct Committee, How Selected—In the voting precincts of all counties there shall be elected by the Democratic voters in such precincts a committee of one member, who shall constitute the precinct committeeman of such precinct. In all State, district, legislative or county mass conventions the proceeding and election of committeemen shall be null and void if the chairman of said mass convention refuses to give tellers and have a count of the vote of those Democrats present, if said request for tellers is made—and the refusal of said chairman to give tellers and a count, the chairman so refusing shall be removed from his office by the State central committeeman upon proper proof is made to him.

"When Elected or Appointed—Said precinct committeemen shall be elected on the third Saturday in November, 1908, and shall be residents of their respective precincts. The Democrats of this State shall meet at their various voting precincts at the hour of 2 o'clock p. m. and proceed to the election of a committeeman to serve until his successor shall be elected, by order of a succeeding State Convention. The retiring precinct committeemen shall call their respective precinct mass-meetings to order and shall preside until the mass-meeting shall elect a chairman. Where there is a vacancy in the office of precinct committeeman the chairman of the county committee shall designate some qualified Democrat living in the precinct to call said meeting to order and preside until the election of a chairman.

"Meeting, Organization, Removal of Chairman or Secretary—On the Monday following such election such precinct committeemen shall meet at their respective county seats; in counties having more than one legislative district, they shall meet at some convenient place in their said legislative districts, to be designated by the respective county or legislative district chairman then in office, who shall preside and organize by electing a chairman and secretary to said county or legislative district committee, who may or may not be a member of said committee. In counties containing cities of the first class these meetings and all other meetings of the precinct committeemen in the legislative district embracing that part of the county outside the city shall be held at the county court house, or at some convenient place designated by the chairman of the legislative district committee, of which due notice shall be given."

The Worship of Serpents. The small town of Werd, in the kingdom of Dahomey, is celebrated for its "temple of serpents," a long building in which the priests keep upward of a thousand serpents of all sizes, which they feed with the birds and frogs brought to them as offerings by the natives.

These serpents, many of them of enormous size, may be seen hanging from the beams across the ceiling with their heads pointing downward and in all sorts of strange contortions. The priests make the small serpents go through various evolutions by lightly touching them with a rod, but they do not venture to touch the largest ones some of which are large enough to fold a bullock in their coils.

It often happens that some of these serpents make their way out of the temple into the town, and the priests have the greatest difficulty in coaxing them back. To kill a serpent intentionally is a crime punished with death and if a European were to kill one the authority of the king himself would scarcely suffice to save his life. Any one killing a serpent unintentionally must inform the priest of what has occurred and go through the course of purification which takes place once a year.

Artificial Limbs.

"A manufacturer or dealer in artificial limbs who wears a cork arm or leg himself is much better equipped for business than his competitors who are sound," said a man who uses a cork leg. "In fact, it has become a sort of unwritten law among us to patronize such men when possible. Sentimental reasons may have something to do with the case, but I guess the chief reason is that we consider that if a man can make a limb for himself that fits like the paper on the wall he can make it for others. Manufacturers of artificial limbs know this, and frequently you will find an advertisement like this: 'The So-and-so artificial leg is built by a man who is wearing one and who knows from experience what you want for comfort.' This is a strong argument, for it's no easy thing to get an artificial limb that just fits. Persons who have trouble getting shoes that are just right are in great luck compared to us."—New York Sun.

An Admiral's Stories.

One of the English admirals has a choice collection of stories at the expense of laymen placed in office at the admiralty as a consequence of a turn of the political wheel. Of one lord of the admiralty he told a delightful house of commons how, receiving a report of disaster to a ship couched in technical phrase, he wrote a reply remonstrating with the officer for his use of bad language. Another civilian lord, looking over a chart and observing that one of his majesty's ships, homeward bound passed within a space of two inches on the chart an island where cast away sailors were sheltering, wanted to know why it could not call and relieve them. The admiral explained that the two inches on the chart meant a distance at sea of 4,000 miles.—London Strand Magazine.

Boone's Portrait In Oil.

There never was but one oil portrait of Daniel Boone painted from life, and that was by Chester Harding, a distinguished artist of Boston, who came to Missouri in June, 1820, and painted it in the residence of Flanders Callaway, Boone's son-in-law, where Boone was then living, near the village of Marthasville, in Warren county. The Rev. James E. Welch, one of the oldest Baptist preachers in the state and father of Alkman Welch, attorney general of Missouri during Governor Gamble's administration, sat in Boone's bed behind Boone for him to lean against while Harding painted the picture, the pioneer being too feeble to sit alone. Harding's portrait of Boone now hangs in the state capitol at Frankfort, Ky.—Kansas City Star.

The Glass Snake.

The slowworm is the snake which country people tell you has the peculiar property of breaking itself into bits, each piece afterward surviving. The truth differs slightly from the legend. The slowworm is a timid creature and when first captured tightens all its muscles, thus reducing itself to a remarkably rigid state, in which condition it will no doubt snap like a dry twig; but, needless to say, only the upper and vital portions survive the ordeal.—London Globe.

What the Jury Thought.

During a trial for assault in Melbourne a club, a rail, an ax handle, a knife and a shotgun were exhibited as the instruments with which the deed was done. It was also shown that the assaulted man defended himself with a scythe, a revolver, a pitchfork, a chisel, a hand saw and a dog. The jury decided that they'd have given a sovereign apiece to have seen the fight.

A Dainty Combination.

"You can't tell," said uncle to us, "you can't tell. Feller I know that's a aesthetic artist—know what he does? He smokes chipwin' tobacco in a pipe that's made o' rubber. Honest, he does. An' he claims his health is delicate!"—Cleveland Leader.

BOOMS HOME TRADE

Prosperity Week a New Foe to Mail Order Menace.

BOOSTS LOCAL INDUSTRIES.

Original Idea of a Bright California Girl That May Be Applied to Any Town or Section With Lasting Benefit—May Become General.

Did you ever hear of prosperity week? Perhaps not, for it is something new under the sun. It is an enterprise of November, 1908, in southern California, but it might just as well be transported to and transplanted in our town or any town.

Some of the New England and other states have their old home week, when former residents or expatriated natives gather at the old home and spend a week in revisiting familiar scenes and talking over the past with the well remembered oldest inhabitant who has been there since the big snow of 1846. But that is merely sentimental—fine and healthful sentiment, to be sure, but nothing more. Prosperity week is a fine sentiment plus something more substantial. It is a practical proposition. It is a business proposition. It means more money in the pockets of the old home folks who are still doing business at the old stand or at new stands. In fact, it seems a general living up of interest in the home place from the standpoint of trade.

Prosperity week as designed by its originator is a business booming week, a home trading week. It means much to the community concerned in the way of the patronizing of home industries, and it means something to the mail order concerns of the big cities in the way of a falling off in patronage.

Prosperity week was invented by a young woman in Los Angeles. When she suggested to the chamber of commerce that a week be set aside under that designation during which everybody should make a particular effort to buy only home grown products and trade only with local merchants, cutting out mail orders altogether, the bright idea was adopted promptly, and the week beginning Nov. 16 was so designated. The result? Well, immediately the idea took hold, and thousands of citizens entered with enthusiasm into the project. The plan was advertised liberally in the home papers. Committees were appointed to work up interest. Other committees were named to devise ways and means for creating a hearty home trade sentiment. Still others were formed to get up tangible methods of celebrating the week, such as an exposition of home products, so that everybody could see just what the local producers and manufacturers had to offer the buying public, the home people, their friends and neighbors in their own community.

And Secretary Frank Wiggins of the Los Angeles chamber of commerce, who has proved his ability in many states as a boomer for his city, pronounced the girl's proposition "a ten million dollar idea," declaring that prosperity week would benefit home industries by at least $10,000,000. Now, why is not this the genesis of a practical proposition that should take root in every community and result ultimately in defeating the dangerous growth and menace of the mail order business, which is choking the prosperity of thousands of small cities and towns and rural communities?

Prosperity week can be applied to any town, this town included. If so applied the result is quite likely to surprise many of us. It is safe to say that but a small percentage of citizens know just what goods are produced or manufactured in their own community. By a concerted effort, a tangible showing such as might be made during a prosperity week, the producers and the consumers would be brought together. The home products would be put right under the eyes and noses of the home consumers, so to speak, so that the gulf between buyer and seller would be wiped out.

Suppose your town should get up a week's exhibition of home products. The local merchants of course would be included in the displays, with booths showing their special bargains for the week and, for that matter, all the year bargains. The "butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker," all would find it profitable to participate in the display. Down the street may be a man who makes ax handles superior to the kind you buy outside of town, but perhaps you are not aware that he is making ax handles at all. Out in the edge of town may be a canning factory which is putting up canned goods that beat any you buy abroad. From the smallest to the largest the manufacturers and the producers and the merchants would come in for their share of the showing, and prosperity week should give the mail order octopus a twisted tentacle—the one that reaches out to grab your community by the neck and throttle it—while your home enterprises would get an injection of the elixir of life.

Who will start the prosperity week plan for us here at home?

The Billboard Fight.

Pleasing progress in fighting the billboard is reported from all quarters. Even from London, Paris, Berlin, Honolulu and many foreign cities reports come of new and more restrictive measures. Every city in the United States enacting new ordinances on the subject strikes a harder blow at these landscape blots. In not a single instance have we heard of a municipality relenting or allowing any to dictate an ordinance giving greater license to the billboard evil.—Los Angeles Times.

THE MATCHMAKER.

There's Nothing Beats a Brother In This Capacity.

As a matchmaker there is nothing to excel the brother.

The role is not taken by him wittingly, but he fills it to perfection, because of his innocent unconsciousness.

The girl with a brother is certain to meet his friends. He brings them home from school when he is a youngster, and the sister, in her superior way, joins in their sports.

Of course the idea that any one should fall in love with a sister of a boy never occurs to the boy himself.

Later in life he brings his fellow students home from college. Then the sister is a young lady. Still, that anybody should fall in love with her strikes the brother as absurd, if it strikes him at all. At last the truth dawns upon him, and he resents it.

Suddenly he discovers that Tom, Dick and Harry are not good enough for his sister. "They're all right for chums, you know, sis," he will explain, "but you don't want to marry any of them, you know. Why, that chap Tom," etc.

But the brother is no longer an equation in the matter. His part has been done. There is not the slightest use of opposition from him, for if it has any effect this is just the opposite from the intended effect.

The brotherless girl often has comparatively few chances of meeting eligibles. She cannot figure the formalities that, with the aid of a brother, are swept aside as though they did not exist.

She may have a scheming mother, but a scheming mother is not always a help, for the eye of discernment dwells in her the scheming mother-in-law of the future.

Nor is a girl who is thrust forward as a candidate for matrimony apt to be accepted at the valuation attached to her.

The bold girl, too, is at a disadvantage. The willingness to marry, made too evident, is construed into an anxiety.

It is the girl with a brother or two who is unhandicapped. She does not have to do any planning. Everything is done for her and all without connivance or even knowledge that it is being done.

She is unaware of it herself and perhaps elated at being chosen when other girls apparently as attractive are passed by.

"There really is no secret about it. The other girls had no brothers."

HOMEMADE KNEECAPS.

Protections, Hailed by Busy Mothers With Much Delight.

Schoolboys always wear out their stockings at the knees, as every mother knows, and the invention of the so called "kneecaps" was hailed by busy women with delight. But somehow they never were very pretty and added nothing to the appearance of the child.

Would it not be a good idea to make them from the cloth of the suits, and then each pair could be worn with the clothes they match? Of course more than one pair for each suit would be necessary, but there are so many pieces left over when the pattern is cut from the material, pieces that seem of no good except to use for patches. Surely if the unsightly pads merely looked like a continuation of the diminutive trousers the looks of the kiddie would not be impaired.

To make them fit a piece of cloth to the knee of the child, interline it with chamamois and bind all round with a bias piece of the material. To fasten them in place sew two pieces of narrow elastic to each side and fasten them in each of the knees with a patent glove fastener. There will then be no buttons to continually need sewing on, and the child will be comfortable.

A NURSE SHOULD KNOW—

That orange juice with cracked ice can often be taken by a patient who can retain nothing else.

That orange juice, being laxative, is excellent in most sickrooms, is sometimes even prescribed for typhoid fever patients.

That chocolate, though nourishing, often causes dyspepsia when the digestion is weak.

That the nervous patient should have eight or nine hours of sleep.

That sleep will be slow in coming if the sick person is allowed to have company just before bedtime or listens to exciting reading.

That one should never ask a sick person, "What can I do for you?"

That dainty service often counts more than quality or variety in the invalid's meals.

That the nurse should never save steps when the patient's appetite is capricious. A small portion often tempts where a larger one nauseates. An extra trip to the kitchen is better than heaped up trays.

That a sickroom should never be made a thoroughfare or the gathering place for the family.

That sponging with alcohol and water will reduce fever several degrees.

That having a patient hold her breath will often prevent a spasm of coughing.

That persons subject to rheumatism or weak heart should not take baths that are ice cold.

You Cannot Answer These Questions!

1—Why do you continue bathing your knees and elbows one at a time, when you can stretch out in a full bath tempered to suit you, and can do so every morning if you wish?

2—Why pump and carry water for your kitchen and laundry work when you can have it at hand for the turning of a faucet?

3—Why take chances on drinking germ-filled cistern water when you can get it from a large reservoir filtered through the best filter plant South of the Ohio River?

4—Why have a dry, dismal-looking yard when you can have it filled with green grass and blooming flowers, and can at the same time get rid of the dust in the street?

5—Why suffer other inconveniences when you can have everything for the comfort and health of your family right in the house?

6—Is it not true that the answer is not "lack of money," but lack of economy and enterprise and indifference to getting the most out of life?

CIRCULATION STATEMENT.State of Kentucky
County of Clark.

Clark B. Tanner, Circulation Manager of The Winchester News, hereby states on oath that he has charge of the circulation department of The Winchester News, and all records pertaining thereto, and further states on oath that the number of papers published by The Winchester News, this 16th day of November, 1908, is 1,500 copies.

CLARK B. TANNER.

Circulation Manager.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, this 16th day of November, 1908, by Clark B. Tanner.

J. W. POYNTER.

Notary Public, Clark County, Ky.
My commission expires February 1, 1912.OUR CIRCULATION.

We have had several friends suggest jokingly that our claims of circulation for The News were exaggerated, that we could not possibly have so many subscribers within a month of the first issue.

The News published 1,500 papers Saturday. And like the high class dailies of today, we present sworn statements of our circulation. We propose at all times to deal frankly and openly to our patrons and advertisers. Our circulation books are open to all advertisers. Any one can come to this office any afternoon of the week and see our press run. We cordially invite any doubting Thomas to satisfy himself.

A large majority of the local merchants are using advertising space regularly. Within a month or two we feel confident that every up-to-date business man in Winchester will appreciate the value of these columns. We have been surprised at the growth of our classified column. In that department quick returns can be seen and results are obtained, if at all, immediately. Hardly a day passes without the management hearing of the return of lost articles advertised, or houses rented. It is the people's market place. We look for a steady building up of this department as people come more and more to realize its usefulness.

The News today goes into practically every well-to-do home in Winchester. It reaches every element of our citizens. It circulates many times the number of papers daily in the city of any other newspaper, daily or weekly. We believe we are stating the facts conservatively when we assert that The News has a larger circulation in this city than all other newspapers, daily and weekly combined.

The News also goes into more homes in Clark county than any other daily or weekly publication. We already send a fair number of copies to Ford, Mt. Sterling and up the L. & E. road. And we open our campaign for circulation along the L. & E. railroad the present week and within the month we ought to be able to make a good showing there.

The News is a good advertising medium now. It will be better as the weeks go by. The holiday trade is on us. It behooves all merchants who want more trade than they had last season to advertise freely in these columns.

In the first thirty days of the existence of The News the management has refused advertising from Lexington and other places. These refusals cost the paper much money. It will easily run to hundreds of dollars a year. We believe that there is no one who is a believer in the Greater Winchester that is not proud of the paper. All The News asks is the cordial support of the community.

CHINA.

The Chinese government is a strange anomaly in this twentieth century. From day to day, telegrams have been received announcing the death of the Emperor. Last Thursday The News received and published the announcement of his death that day. On Friday, it was stated that he died on November 10. On Saturday that he was not yet dead but was very ill and expected to die any moment. Finally late Saturday, it was again telegraphed that he was really dead and that Prince Chun, his brother, had been made regent and his infant son, Pu Wei, the new Emperor.

We do not believe there is another country in the world where the ruler's death could be thus in doubt. China is the last great nation to feel the uplift of modern civilization. But even here there has been some movement along modern lines, although the Dowager Empress who dominated the late Emperor all his life, set her face strongly against any reforms.

Within the last year there was an announcement that China was going to have a constitution and Parliament. But nothing came of it and we do not believe the people are ready for it.

It is said in the late dispatches that the appointment of Prince Chun has made a good impression. It satisfies the reformers and is a protest against the ruler of the Empress Dowager.

Trade with the United States and the European nations is, however, slowly introducing Western ideas. But the population is so immense, the territory so great, that such ideas penetrate very gradually.

Even the Emperor in his last sickness refused the aid of British or German physicians, which had been tendered him by the foreign legations. One of the edicts issued in the name of the Emperor is a curiosity.

"Since last Autumn we have been ill. The physicians recommended by the Government have not been successful in curing us. We are weak and without spirit, racked by pain, without appetite, cold and feverish and it has been impossible for us to sleep."

"We are anxious to permit the Viceroy and the Governors to send other physicians to us quickly, and we will give extraordinary rewards to the physicians or officials who help us."

BASEBALL MEETING.

There will be a baseball meeting of those interested in the game at the county court room in the court house Monday night at 7:30 o'clock. All who have subscribed for stock to the company and those who contemplate doing so and those who are interested in baseball ought to be present at this meeting, as the management wishes to have a heart to heart talk with the fans concerning the future of baseball.

The management last week sent out 175 letters to different citizens of the town and county asking them to subscribe to the baseball fund. A blank subscription was enclosed with each letter and a stamped two cent envelope for reply. Responses have been very few and very much less than the management had anticipated. Unless the people are interested sufficient in baseball to raise enough money to have a good club the management will drop the project entirely.

Winchester can and should support a good club and unless we can have a good one we do not want any at all. Baseball is a great sport and is a wonderful advertiser of a city. This town is too well known for liberality to allow the baseball club to fall through, but unless the citizens are willing to subscribe and take hold of the matter, those who are mostly interested will drop the project entirely.

We hope there will be a good many present tonight and that the baseball club will be put on a good financial basis. We believe that those who received communications last week have neglected answering, and we hope they will send in their subscriptions promptly.

EXPLAINS HIS STANDARD JOBSenator Foraker Makes Public Certain Letters.*WRITES TO VIRGIL KLINE

Who, in Turn, Tells How While in the Midst of Numerous Cases Against His Client He Turned to Ohio's Senator For Advice — Foraker Says He Is in the Field, but Will Not Engage in Scramble to Succeed Himself.

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 16.—Senator Joseph B. Foraker has issued a statement in which he makes public correspondence regarding the character of his employment by the Standard Oil company and the services he rendered under such employment. The correspondence was between Senator Foraker and Virgil P. Kline of Cleveland, of counsel for the Standard Oil company, who Senator Foraker says personally enlisted the services of the senator.

Mr. Kline replies at length to the request of Mr. Foraker concerning the character of the latter's employment by the Standard. He says that in December, 1898, at the time Mr. Foraker was employed, there was pending against the Standard in the Ohio supreme court very serious litigation. A proceeding in contempt had been instituted by the attorney general, charging that company with having willfully violated the order of the supreme court directing it to withdraw from the trust agreement. The company had answered, issues been made up, and a considerable volume of testimony taken. There was also pending, says Mr. Kline, proceedings alleging violation of the anti-trust laws of the state against four constituent companies of the oil trust. Many millions of dollars of property were involved in these proceedings, and much imperiled, in addition to other litigation threatened.

Mr. Kline then says it was in the midst of these difficult cases that, with the approval of his client, he turned to Senator Foraker for assistance and advice. He declares the Standard had endeavored "in good faith to comply with the order of the supreme court. Trust certificate holders, by a resolution passed at a meeting held in New York in March, 1892, determined not only that the Standard Oil company of Ohio should withdraw from so-called trust agreement, but that the trust itself should be dissolved, and the trustees had entered in good faith upon the policy of a dissolution and a winding up of the entire trust. Mr. Kline says difficulties presented themselves, as the trust certificates, of a par value of more than $97,000,000, were held everywhere throughout the country, and the effort to give the trust certificate holders a legal interest in the stock of the various companies that had formerly been in the trust, was one of great difficulty. Mr. Kline continues:

The three quo warranto cases then pending, and the fourth one threatened, and later begun, called for most drastic action upon the part of the supreme court if its judgment should be adverse. It was asked, in each of the four quo warranto cases, and such was a proper prayer, that each of the four defendants be adjudged to have forfeited and surrendered their corporate rights and franchises, that they may be dissolved, and that the court appoint trustees to wind up their affairs and distribute their property.

It was upon a realization of these serious and disastrous consequences, well knowing your ability as an attorney, and the respect lawyers and courts had for you throughout the state, that I sought your service. You entered at once actively upon the employment, making your own investigations here in Ohio and in New York, holding frequent consultations with myself and other counsel for the company, in Columbus, Cincinnati, New York and Washington. Your judgment was sought, not only as to what had been done by the Standard Oil company in its effort to withdraw from the trust, but also as to what form of future organization of the great interests of this company, and of the constituent companies, should be taken, that they might not be open to any further attack.

For more than a year testimony was taken at various places, full transcripts of that evidence furnished you, and suggestions received from you as to the lines upon which it ought to be met. The testimony having been closed, the contempt case was finally submitted to the supreme court, and, in December, 1900, an entry was made by the court finding the defendant not guilty of contempt and dismissing the proceedings. A little later, the four ouster cases were also dismissed, the dismissal of the latter cases being made by the court at the suggestion of the then attorney general, Judge Sheets.

So far from the attitude of the company being one of a desire to evade the law or the decree of the court, it had faithfully endeavored to comply therewith, and, so far as the Valentine trust law was concerned, we were not trying, by subterfuge or indirection, to evade it. You understood perfectly our desire and co-operated with it, to put these large properties on a basis of conformity to the decree of the court and of the law, that they might be safely and securely held by their owners. Your efforts greatly contributed to the success of the litigation and the preservation of the property by its owners. At the time of your employment and when it ceased, as it did, according to my recollection, somewhere about the first of January, 1901, there was no intimation from any source whatever of criticism or attack on the part of the federal government. That did not come for more than four years afterwards, and so far as I know, and I have been intimately in touch with the litigation and trouble of the company for twenty years, and am still, nothing has ever been asked of or accepted by you inconsistent with your public duties, and so far as I know you have had no relation whatever to the company, as an attorney or otherwise, for more than seven years.

In corroboration of Mr. Kline's statement, Senator Foraker submits a letter from M. F. Elliott of New York, a member of counsel for the Standard Oil company. Mr. Elliott says: "I was associated with Mr. Kline in the cases he refers to in his letter and know that the statements contained in his letter are true."

Senator Foraker, in conclusion, says:

"With the publication of these letters, which, added to my former statements, should in my opinion satisfy any fair-minded man, I submit to the legislature, as every other candidate must do, the question as to who shall be my successor in the senate. I do not mean by this statement that I do not intend to give any further attention to the impending contest, but rather that I do not intend to engage in any unseemly scramble."

"Whatever may be the result, I shall always be profoundly grateful for the many distinguished honors I have enjoyed at the hands of the people of Ohio, and shall always have the satisfaction of knowing, whether anybody else does or not, that I have under all circumstances striven to serve my state and my country faithfully and efficiently, and, whether right or wrong, never more so than in regard to these questions in connection with which I have been criticized."

ANGRY SOLDIERS

Burn Officer in Effigy When Denied Regular Army Pay.

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 16.—After burning in effigy at Camp Nemo of Colonel Harvey Alexander, assistant adjutant general of Tennessee, a number of the officers of the First Tennessee regiment, on duty in the Reelfoot lake region during the recent night rider troubles, declare they will resign if they do not receive regular army instead of state pay for the services rendered. Frank prediction that the regiment will be disbanded is already heard. Colonel Tatom, commanding, is said to be one of the most determined that army pay shall be allowed. He refused angrily, it is said, the state pay tendered him at Union City. "Do you reckon I am a policeman?" he is credited with declaring to Captain Fred Phillips, commissary officer in charge. "I will not accept a cent of pay unless we are given the amount we deserve, the same as that paid officers in the United States army."

Burglars Loot Postoffice.

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 16.—Burglars robbed the South Bend post office of $18,653 in stamps and made a successful escape. The plunder included 550,000 1-cent stamps, 600,000 2-cent stamps, 500 25-cent books of 1-cent stamps, 1,000 25-cent books of 2-cent stamps, 500 49-cent books and 500 97-cent books.

JOHNSON'S BANK

Absorbed by Two Cleveland Financial Institutions.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 16.—The Depositors' Savings and Trust company, of which Mayor Tom L. Johnson was the founder and president, and said to be the principal depository of the Municipal Traction company, has been absorbed by two Cleveland banks. This action was taken as the result of several days' negotiations. The saving accounts, amounting to $305,000, were taken over by the Cleveland Trust company, and the checking accounts, amounting to $268,000, by the First National bank. It was stated by the officers of the Depositors' Savings and Trust company and the officers of the two absorbing banks that the liabilities of the absorbed bank were fully secured and that the bank was in good financial condition.

Delay in Missouri Rate Case.

Kansas City, Nov. 16.—A delay of two weeks in the Missouri rate case was announced by Judge Smith McPherson in the federal court. Judge McPherson declared he was compelled to return to his home district in south Iowa, owing to the crowded court docket there. At the end of that time he said he would return to Kansas City and finish the rate case hearing without further delay.

SOCIETY

Hard Times.

Before the election and since, all we have heard is hard times, hard times. No money in circulation and nothing to pay the accounts with. Can't you wait a while?

It is queer that there is always a time before the Presidential elections that money matters are tight, yet it is so. The moneyed men of Wall street hug their dollars until the eagles squeal and won't let the vise like grip loosen until after the fate of one of two men has been decided.

Many of us feel absolutely no difference; we go on in the same old rut and there is little to break the monotony, not knowing the sufferings of those less fortunate than we.

Yet an odd result of hard times is given by the social settlement workers in New York City. The facts are that times have been harder than usual there for the past eight or nine months, and in this time there have been fewer calls for physicians, consequently fewer purchases of drugs. The death rate has been unprecedentedly low, and the health of the people better than ever before. In the opinion of the society reporting this improved condition, it is brought about because the hard times have been effective in reducing gluttony and dissipation.

The approach to the "Simple Life" has bought its reward in better health and a lower death rate, and consequently there was less for the doctors to do.

Lexington Opera House.

No more beautiful and up-to-date opera is on the road to-day than "A Waltz Dream," which played at the Lexington Opera House, Friday and Saturday nights, and Saturday matinee. The Company was composed of splendid characters, whose musical ability was only equalled by their powers of acting. The scenery was splendid, and the costumes were gorgeous. Every member of the Company is a star, and the performance was one of the very best ever seen in this section.

Manager Chas. Scott is to be congratulated upon the high class of attractions which he brings to his Opera House. Next Saturday, matinee and night, Miss Eleanor Robson, in Richard Harding Davis' latest play "Vera, the Medium," will appear in the title role. The play is said to be peculiarly fitted to Miss Robson's charming personality and wonderful ability. She is assisted this season by a company of performers scarcely less famous than herself. The novel theme; the mechanical effects which bring forth a materialistic scene; the costumes and the strain of love running through the play, make it worthy of the patronage of all.

K. W. C. NOTES

President Taylor spent Sunday at Owingsville supplying in the Methodist Church.

Professor V. I. Moore is in Lexington today trying to secure a football game with Transylvania University for Friday of this week. Although the men are not in condition it is hoped that such a game can be arranged. The men need the practice of games if we are to have a well seasoned team next year. The present prospect is that ten of the present team will return to college next year and each game played adds untold strength to the team.

A Fleming County Club has been formed in the college by men from said county. The officers are President W. V. Cropper; Vice President, J. Glover Williams; Secretary, C. P. Soursley; Treasurer, Maurice Aitkin. Among the other members are Prof. Spencer and Messrs. Emmons, Poynter, Day Arnold and Saunders. The purpose of the organization is social and literary. The club will meet once a month.

W. V. Morris went to his home at Coridon last Saturday to attend the wedding of his sister.

John Wakefield visited his home at Louisville several days last week to attend the wedding of his sister.

C. P. Soursley went to Flemingsburg Saturday to take part in the Democratic primary of Fleming county.

The men of the Y. M. C. A. have been holding voluntary prayer meetings each evening of the past week and will continue them for at least the coming week.

Dr. Cumming conducted the Y. M. C. A. meeting last Tuesday evening. The doctor has made a warm place for himself among the college men because of his practiced earnestness and his ability to enter into the affairs of the men.

A constantly increasing number of our young men are filling out-of-town pulpits each Sunday. Yesterday six of the young men were on the firing line.

WOODFORD HUNTERS GO TO CASEY COUNTY.

VERSAILLES, Ky., Nov. 16.—After the strenuous days of campaigning a good many of those with offices at the court house left yesterday morning for a hunting trip. Deputy Sheriff Wingate has gone to Casey county; Mr. Henry Childers and Mr. Leant Bohannon will be in Anderson several days; Dr. J. P. Holt and Miller Turner are at Antioch, and Mr. Jesse Graddy is with Mr. Henry Robb near Louisville.

From now on the exodus of Nimrods will be a daily occurrence.

HUNTERS ARE NOW OUT IN THE FIELD

Many From This City Looking For the Festive Rabbit and Lively Quail.

The law of the State of Kentucky prohibiting the killing of quail, partridges and rabbits expired Sunday, and from now on the little cotton tail and birds will have to take care of themselves and from now on the fields and woods of Kentucky will be thick with hunters and sportsmen and the various hotels and cafes will include quail on toast in their menu. Notwithstanding the fact that the law expired on Sunday many of the hunters went hunting on that day.

The game laws of Kentucky prohibit the killing of partridges and quail except during the period between November 15 and January 1. The law is plain on that score, and since the many clubs and other sportsmen's organizations have been endeavoring to see that it is enforced, there have been comparatively few violations. Several of the proprietors of hotels in the State have been fined for having game in their possession within the prohibited time, but the game wardens are now known to be constantly on the alert, and if it is rare, indeed, there is a violation. Possession in itself is a violation of the law.

The Kentucky game laws permit the killing of quail, pheasants and wild turkey from November 15 to January 1; rabbits, from November 15 to September 15; squirrel, from November 15 to February 1, and also from June 15 to September 15; duck and geese, from August 15 to April 1; doves, from August 1 to February 1; woodcock, from June 20 to February 1, and snipe at any time. It is unlawful to kill thrush, meadow lark, martin, swallow or any other bird of song or insectivorous bird.

It is in violation of the law to hunt on grounds inclosed without the permission of the owner, and the offense is punishable by a fine of from $5 to $25.

In the last two days, about one hundred and fifty of the local sportsmen have left the city going in different directions with guns and dogs. The late departures for the happy hunting ground are D. B. Seabee and Dr. Brashear, who went to Nicholas county and Ben D. Goff and Jake Gay to Laurel county and Stoner Ogden, Ike Tracy, M. D. Tarpy, Will Garner, George Goosey and Spider Adams and eight begie dogs left at an early hour Monday morning to start the sport off in this county.

TRANSYLVANIA LOSES TO DANVILLE PLAYERS

Central University Wins Over Crimison Squad By Score of 6 to 5.

Both teams displayed excellent form and the spectators witnessed a game full of spirit from start to finish.

LITTLE TARDINESS AT THE CITY SCHOOL.

It is of vital importance that children should be regular and punctual in attending school. At present there is very little tardiness due to the fact that patrons cooperate so well with the teachers to reduce tardiness to the minimum amount.

Monday morning there were two pupils tardy—one at each building and neither had a good excuse for being tardy.

Until recently many pupils remained out of school on Friday afternoon to go a visiting and frequently did not return to their school work before Monday afternoon.

Such visits usually means a loss of two days from school work. It is to be hoped that parents will discourage remaining out of school except when absolutely necessary.

Mr. Frank Perry was in town Friday.

The Younger Set.

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS.
Author of "The Fighting Game," Etc.

Copyright, 1907, by Robert W. Chambers.

methodical and colorless in its routine to the verge of dreariness.

When he was not at the government proving grounds on Sandy Hook he remained in his room at Lansing's, doggedly forcing himself into the only alternate occupation sufficient to dull the sadness of his mind—the preparation of a history of British military organization in India and its possible application to present conditions in the Philippines.

He had given up going out—made no further pretense—and Boots let him alone.

Once a week he called at the Gerards', spending most of his time while there with the children. Sometimes he saw Nina and Eileen, usually just returned or about to depart for some function, and his visit, as a rule, ended with a cup of tea alone with Austin and a quiet cigar in the library.

The elopement of Gerald and Gladys made a splash in the social piddle.

Eileen, loyal, but sorrowfully amazed at her brother's exclusion of her in such a crisis, became slowly overwhelmed with the realization of her loneliness and took to the seclusion of her own room, feeling fearful and abandoned and very much like a very little girl whose heart was becoming far too full of all sorts of sorrows.

Nina misunderstood her, finding her lying on her bed, her pale face pillowed in her hair.

"Only horridly ordinary people will believe that Gerald wanted her money," said Nina, "as though an Erroll considered such matters at all or needed to. Boots is a dear. Do you know what he's done?"

"What?" asked Eileen listlessly, raising the back of her slender hand from her eyes to peer at Nina through the glimmer of tears.

"Well, he and Phil have moved out of Boots' house, and Boots has wired Gerald and Gladys that the house is ready for them until they can find a place of their own. Of course they'll both come here. In fact, their luggage is upstairs now. Boots takes the blue room, and Phil his old quarters. But don't you think it is perfectly sweet of Boots? And isn't it good to have Philip back again?"

"Yes," said Eileen faintly.

Nina laid a cool, smooth hand across her forehead, pushing back the hair, a light caress sensitive as an unasked question.

But there was no response, and presently the elder woman rose and went out along the landing, and Eileen heard her laughingly greeting Boots, who had arrived posthaste on learning that Drina was indisposed.

"Don't be frightened. The little wretch carried tons of indigestible stuff to her room and sat up half the night eating it. Where's Philip?"

"I don't know. Here's a special delivery for him. I signed for it and brought it from the house. He'll be here from the Hook soon, I fancy."

Half an hour later Drina was asleep, holding fast to Boots' sleeve, and that young gentleman sat in a chair beside her discussing with her pretty mother the plans made for Gladys and Gerald on their expected arrival.

Eileen, pale and heavily lidded, looked in on her way to some afternoon affair, nodding unsmiling at Boots.

"Have you been rifling the pantry, too?" he whispered. "You lack your usual chromatic sympathy."

"No. I'm just very tired. If I wasn't physically afraid of Drina I'd get you to run off with me—anywhere. What is that letter, Nina? For me?"

"It's for Phil. Boots brought it around. Leave it on the library table, dear, when you go down."

Eileen took the letter and turned away. A few moments later as she laid it on the library table her eyes involuntarily noted the superscription written in the long, angular, fashionable writing of a woman.

And slowly the inevitable question took shape within her.

How long she stood there she did not know, but the points of her gloved fingers were still resting on the table and her gaze was still concentrated on the envelope when she felt Selwyn's presence in the room, near, close, and looked up into his steady eyes—and knew he loved her.

And suddenly she broke down, for with his deep gaze in hers the overwrought specter had fled.

"What is it?" he made out to say, managing also to keep his hands off her where she sat, bowed and quivering by the table.

"Nothing—a little crisis—over now—nearly over. It was that letter—other women writing you—and I—outlawed—tongue tied. Don't look at me; don't wait. I—I am going out."

He went to the window, stood a moment, came back to the table, took his letter and walked slowly again to the window.

After awhile he heard the rustle of her gown as she left the room, and a little later he straightened up, passed his hand across his tired eyes and, looking down at the letter in his hand, broke the seal.

It was from one of the nurses, Miss Casson, and shorter than usual:

"Mrs. Ruthven is physically in perfect health, but yesterday we noted a rather startling change in her mental condition. There were during the day intervals that seemed perfectly lucid. Once she spoke of Miss Bond as 'the other nurse,' as though she realized something of the conditions surrounding her. Once, too, she seemed astonished when I brought her a doll and asked me, 'Is there a child here, or is it for a charity bazaar?'

"Later I found her writing a letter at my desk. She left it unfinished when she went to drive, a mere scrap. I thought it best to inclose it, which I do herewith."

The inclosed he opened: "Phil, dear, though I have been very ill, I know you are my own husband. All the rest was only a child's dream of terror."

And that was all, only this scrap, firmly written in the easy flowing hand he knew so well. He studied it for a moment or two, then resumed Miss Casson's letter:

"A man stopped our sleigh yesterday, asking if he was not speaking to Mrs. Ruthven. I was a trifle worried and replied that any communication for Mrs. Ruthven could be sent to me."

"That evening two men—gentlemen apparently—came to the house and asked for me. I went down to receive them. One was a Dr. Mallison; the other said his name was Thomas B. Hallam, but gave no business address."

"When I found that they had come without your knowledge and authority I refused to discuss Mrs. Ruthven's condition, and the one who said his name was Hallam spoke rather peremptorily and in a way that made me think he might be a lawyer."

"They got nothing out of me, and they left when I made it plain that I had nothing to tell them."

"I thought it best to let you know about this, though I personally cannot guess what it might mean."

Selwyn turned the page:

"One other matter worries Miss Bond and myself. The revolver you sent us at my request has disappeared. We are nearly sure Mrs. Ruthven has it—you know she once dressed it as a doll, calling it her army doll—but now we can't find it. She has hidden it somewhere—out of doors in the shrubbery, we think—and Miss Bond and I expect to secure it the next time she takes a fancy to have all her dolls out for a 'lawn party.'"

"Dr. Wesson says there is no danger of her doing any harm with it, but wants us to secure it at the first opportunity."

He turned the last page. On the other side were merely the formula of leave taking and Miss Casson's signature.

For awhile he stood in the center of the room, head bent, narrowing eyes fixed; then he folded the letter, pocketed it and walked to the table where a directory lay.

He found the name, Hallam, very easily—Thomas B. Hallam, lawyer, junior in the firm of Spencer, Boyd & Hallam. They were attorneys for Jack Ruthven. He knew that.

Mallison he also found—Dr. James Mallison, who, it appeared, conducted some sort of private asylum on Long Island. What was Ruthven after?

Chapter 28

RUTHVEN was after his divorce. That was what it all meant. His first check on the long trail came with the stupefying news of Gerald's runaway marriage to the young girl he was laying his own plans to marry some day in the future, and at first the news staggered him, leaving him apparently no immediate incentive for securing his freedom.

But Ruthven instantly began to realize that what he had lost he might not have lost had he been free to shoulder aside the young fellow who had forestalled him. The chance had passed—that particular chance. But he'd never again allow himself to be caught in a position where such a chance could pass him by because he was not legally free to at least make the effort to seize it.

Fear in his soul had kept him from blazoning his wife's infirmity to the world as cause for an action against her, but he remembered Neergard's impudent cruise with her on the Niobrara, and he had temporarily settled on that as a means to extort revenue, not intending such an action should ever come to trial. And then he learned that Neergard had gone to pieces. That was the second check.

Ruthven needed money. He needed it because he meant to put the ocean between himself and Selwyn before commencing any suit, whatever ground he might choose for entering such a suit. He required capital on which to live abroad during the proceedings if that could be legally arranged. And meanwhile, preliminary to any plan of campaign, he desired to know where his wife was and what might be her actual physical and mental condition.

ANTI-NOISE LEADER.

Even Paris Admires Mrs. Rice and Yields For Her Help.

Three years ago Mrs. Rice of New York city started an aggressive campaign to quell the excessive noises of urban life, and she is at present president of the association incorporated since then under the name of the Society For the Suppression of Excessive Noise. A tour of Europe has convinced her that in this matter, as in so many others, the people of America are far ahead of the rest of the world.

With the exception of a branch society in London, up to the time of the establishment of her society there was no association in existence with a similar object, so far as she could learn. People in Europe were interested in her work, and some of them, inclined to be critical at first, are now studying the subject with the intent of following her lead.

One of the most ardent admirers of her anti-noise campaign is the German writer, Professor Theodor Lessing, who has published a book entitled "Lärm" ("Noise"). He has shown his interest in a practical way and has established in Munich a similar society, which had its first meeting not long ago. He invited Mrs. Rice to become its president and was greatly disappointed that her work in New York will prevent her accepting.

The officials of the city of Rotterdam are discussing the establishment of a similar organization, and the newspapers devoted columns of description and praise to her work while she was there.

When Mrs. Rice reached Paris she found that the fame of the anti-noise society had long preceded her. Journalists visited her and were enthusiastic to the point of hysteria over her idea. One newspaper writer apostrophized her:

"When you have finished calming the American tumult come to us, come to Paris, for we have need of your aid. In Paris the tumult grows day by day. Come, oh, come! Try to obtain from our authorities permission to suppress, above everything else, the use of the strings of clanging bells which disfigure the necks of the cab horses. The sound of those bells is rendering us gradually foolish—idiots, neurotics. By and by we shall all be in asylums. Think of that, Mrs. Isaac L. Rice! Think of that and hurry up! We simply cannot wait, for it is absolutely true that if the present uproar continues much longer Paris itself will be only a great hospital!"

Mrs. Rice brought back in her trunk a few strings of the cab horse bells, which she rang as an accompaniment while she laughingly translated the appeal.

A Professor's Viewpoint.

The last contribution to woman vivisection is from Professor W. T. Thomas of Chicago university. In a number of the American Magazine the author of "Sex and Society," after giving an excellent resume of the evolution of the human animal from the standpoint of the biologist and the anthropologist, indulges, as is now customary, in the unmerciful and not uniformly logical dissecting of modern man's mate. Although a certain degree of scientific fairness is dealt her both in the author's premises and in his conclusion, and he at least concedes that woman is the same animal as man, he nevertheless deals with modern woman much after the manner of his predecessors.

For instance, he accuses her of cunning and hypocrisy (would not these qualities in man have become shrewdness and diplomacy?), of vanity applied to her wailing instincts, although he frankly admits that "she is less interested in man than man is in her." This, however, does not prevent his declaring that "her purity, constancy, reserve and devotion," which constitute "her morality," have been imposed upon her by man whom the latter pleases. Yet can it be denied that when woman breaks through her moral self restraint it is usually due to what the learned professor is pleased to call man's "interest in her?" Is he not a little "mixed" as to the quality and origin of woman's morality?

At least, unlike his predecessors, Professor Thomas seeks a remedy for the "irregularity, pettiness, ill health and unserviceableness of modern woman," and he finds it not only in a general and cultural education, but in "a special and occupational interest . . .

which should be preferably gainful." This, he thinks, would relieve the matrimonial situation by putting a curb on wives' demands upon their husbands' attentions and must provide a more solid basis of association by bringing women in the same general world of interest as men.

On this ground Professor Thomas, who, by the way, says many equally wise things and a few less so, will no doubt be met by most earnest modern women. The important point for the progress and happiness of society at the present juncture is that women and men shall stand together and understand each other, for, as the book of Genesis says, "God created man . . . and male and female he created them"—that is, they are one.

A Famous Physician's Advice.

There is a famous physician who has given much of his time to the study of rest. He has worked out some good plans for tired men and women which have benefited them.

This doctor says that plenty of fresh air day and night and one hour's walk is enough for any woman. Her constitution does not need any more exercise than is given by a three mile spin. If she is in the city she cannot go at such a rate of speed, but on springy country roads she can turn out from two to three miles a day and find herself in fit condition.

This is the only exercise, he thinks, that does not exhaust the heart, irritate the nerves and overwork the muscles. He does not object to light tennis, indifferently played, but tennis as the American girl plays it is simply out of the question. She wants to play like a man, and she plays against men. She plays too long, and the cold shower bath which she takes at the end is too serious a shock. This doctor has a good deal to say on the subject of annual vacations. He now has his hands full of sick and fatigued women who have overdone the vacation theory.

They work for ten months in a year in some way, whether for wages or not, without giving themselves any rest, then lump their rest all in a few weeks or less during the summer.

They do unaccustomed things which exhaust a body already tired and come back home generally unfit for the winter.

To quote him, he says: "Nine out of ten women feel worse after a vacation than when they started and are unable to resume work properly. A woman does not need a long rest, but a great number of short ones."

"It is better to rest four separate half hours a day than to go like mad through the week and rest sixteen hours on Sunday. It is better to divide the twelve months of work into stated half holidays rather than take two months after ten months of exhaustion."

Euchre Decorations.

Place a high glass vase with two or three long stemmed white roses in the center of your table. Around the base of the vase arrange the picture cards—bowers, kings and queens—from a pack in a circle like a doily.

The ices can be served in boxes simulating a pack of cards, and paper napkins on which cards are printed will add to the decorative scheme.

Make sandwiches and cakes in shape of hearts, diamonds, clubs and spades and have heart and diamond shaped dishes for bonbons and salted nuts.

As artificial light always adds a charm, exclude daylight, as your euchre is an afternoon affair, and light the room with candles. Get together as many candelabra and candlesticks as you can find places for putting them on sideboard, shelf, bracket—everywhere except on the table. They will give the room a soft, pretty light not attainable with gas or electricity.

At each cover place a playing card, face up, alternating the black and red suits. Duplicate these cards from another pack, and as the guests enter the dining room deal out one that corresponds to each place card, giving the women red and the men black, if men are present. In this way the guests will find their places at tables or partners with whom they are to converse. If refreshments are passed around, the table may be further decorated at each corner with a house of balanced cards, such as children delight in building, and any person unfortunate enough to knock one down must build it again for the amusement of all present.

For prizes the shops are showing chocolate jugs, water pitchers and candlesticks in a cream white porcelain decorated with playing cards. There are, too, little figures of the devil standing on a card that are very amusing and good for booby prizes.

Titled New Yorker Raises Poultry.

Poultry raising has become the chief diversion of Lady Craven, formerly Cornelia Martin of New York. It is fifteen years since the shy girl, then barely sixteen years old, faced a congregation of 2,000 persons in Grace church and went to the altar as the bride of the weak looking young Englishman. There were many that day who predicted trouble for the child wife, but Lady Craven has been one American wife in Europe to find happiness. At the Craven estate, Coombe Abbey, in Warwickshire, she has one of the finest collection of hens, ducks, geese and turkeys in England. As a duck fancier she has taken many first prizes with her multicolored Mandarins, Carolinas and Bahamas. She also has won many firsts in the ornamental geese class with specimens of the gray Ceropis, the white feathered Sebastopol and the barred Magellan. The proudest possession of Lady Craven's poultry yard, however, is the buff laced Wyandotte which she imported from this country. Lady Craven gives close personal attention to the care of her birds.

INSANITY ON THE DECREASE

English Statistics Show Fewer Weak-Minded People as Public Charges.

Every family in England possesses at least one "weak-minded" member—this is the opinion of an editorial writer in the Hospital, a London medical magazine. The remark is elicited by a recent report of the commissioners in lunacy, which shows that, although the number of insane patients in British hospitals continue to increase yearly, the rate of increase is now less than for the past few years. Possibly, the writer suggests, the race is acquiring some sort of immunity, certain families being now able to withstand an attack that would have been fatal to their ancestors. The statistics also show that three-quarters of the persons annually certified to be insane are suffering from a first attack, which would indicate the efficiency of treatment and the comparative rarity of hereditary insanity. The outlook is regarded, on the whole, as rather hopeful.

RANK DISCRIMINATION.

"What makes me angry?" complained the young married woman, "is that I have to pay twice as much as my husband does to get my shoes shined and, to say the least, mine are not twice the size of his. The other day I noticed on the corner near us a stand with the sign 'Shine or Polish, five cents.' So I sent the girl with my tan ties to be done. When she came back she was minus a dime instead of a nickel. She reported that the man said the tan shoes were always ten cents. That night I asked my husband what he paid and he said a nickel, of course. Now, why did that Italian soak me, I'd like to know?"

THE ARTISTIC NAT.

An eminent painter was once asked if he thought art students did well to go to the continent to study. He said that undoubtedly the atmosphere was more artistic in Europe than anywhere else, but that Paris, as a city to study and work in, was overrated.

To illustrate his meaning, he said that a certain rich man's son, after three years in Paris, wrote home to his father:

"Dear Father—I have made up my mind to get to work. Please let me know at your earliest convenience whether it was painting, architecture or music I came to Paris to study."—Answers.

TROUBLE IN THE CAMP.

Lady Cook gave $500 to Mrs. Harriet Stanton Blatch of the League of Self-Supporting Women, to be used to fight the case of Dr. Julia Seton Sears, who, having voted in Colorado, was denied a vote in New York. But the Blatch faction has nothing to do with the suffragette faction to which Dr. Sears belongs, and consequently the money will not be used for the purpose designated. The suffragettes say they have plenty of money and that there are plenty of registration cases that Lady Cook may take up if she wants to.

DOG FALLS ON WOMAN PASSERBY

While passing through the Rue des Halles the other morning Mme. Catherine Noel was knocked down and stunned by a dog, which fell on her head from the fourth floor of a house in that street.

The dog's owner, summoned before the police commissioner, explained that his dog, who was sick, had been left on the balcony and must have jumped over the railing in the course of a fit.—Paris Liberte.

JUST THE FINISHING TOUCH

Recipe for Sauce That Might Tempt the Proverbial Anchovis to Eat.

A perfect sauce is the life of a dinner. Many cooks have failed of success because of their inability to make a sauce. Here is something that sounds good enough for anything: One onion, one parsnip, one sweet potato, one red pepper, one shallot, one celery root, one clove garlic, one carrot; remove seeds from the pepper, peel the parsnip, carrot and potato, and chop all very fine. Add three large bay leaves, one-fourth teaspoonful each of cloves, cinnamon, mace and allspice. Mix all together and season with salt and pepper. Put in a saucepan and sprinkle well with brown sugar. Bake in a quick oven, and when a rich brown, remove and add one-half cup of cold water. Place on top of stove and stir and simmer for 15 minutes, or until you have a rich brown syrup. Strain the sauce and bottle; keep in a cool place for a couple of hours (or when you are ready to use it). A few drops for soups, stews, etc., will give ze grand appetito!

RATTLING DYNAMITE AROUND.

Among the great variety of vehicles that now fill the thoroughfares in the frivolous Forties there is one that seems particularly out of place there and which always gives timid souls a distinct shock and fills them with a strong desire to get away from its neighborhood every time they see it approaching. In general it resembles the ordinary delivery wagon of a shop, but the signs on the front, rear and both sides of it, together with a red flag that flutters from the rear end of the wagon top, fill the timid pedestrian with alarm. Those legends bear the word "Dynamite."

"Hey! You stop that noise or I'll run you in!"

HUDSON TUNNEL'S ODOR.

"We are approaching the entrance to the Hudson tunnel," he said, as they walked along Sixth avenue. "How do I know? There is a peculiar odor of gas that emanates from the Hudson tunnel that is all its own. It has the subway beaten hollow. There's nothing like it. I don't know whether it is because it goes under the Hudson river or that the Hoboken people talk so much, or because they have 404 saloons over there."—New York Press.

GLASS TELEGRAPH POLES.

In Grossalmerode, a town near Cassel, Germany, a factory has recently been established for the manufacture of glass telegraph and telephone poles. The glass mass of which the poles are made is strengthened by interlacing and intertwining with strong wire threads. One of the principal advantages of these poles, it is said, would be their use in tropical countries, where wooden poles are soon destroyed by the ravages of insects, and where climatical influences are ruinous to wood.

KILLS CHILDREN. THEN CUTS HER OWN THROAT.

Terrible Tragedy is Enacted By Frankfort Woman in Despondency.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Nov. 16.—During a fit of despondency yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Agnes Lidner, aged 37, wife of John Lidner, a glass blower, whose home is on Hamilton avenue, Brooklyn, cut the throats of her two children, George, aged five, and Clara, aged three, killing them, and then committing suicide by cutting her own throat here this afternoon.

The only motive for the tragedy was despondency, as her husband had been out of work until recently, and the family had been reduced to the blindest condition.

Superior Playing.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 16.—In the most stubbornly contested, the most interesting and from many standpoints the best played game seen on a local gridiron in many years, the football team of Kentucky State University defeated the team from Rose Polytechnic Institute, Terre Haute, Ind., Saturday afternoon. The final score was 12 to 10. Kentucky made a touchdown in each half and both times kicked a clean goal. Rose Polytechnic kicked a goal from the field and made a touchdown with goal in the second half.

RICHMOND, Ky., Nov. 16.—The Democratic primary election here Saturday was the quietest in the history of the county, due, it is claimed, to the no-whiskey and no-money plan. The winners were:

County Judge, W. Rhodes Shackelford; County Attorney, O. P. Jackson; Sheriff, D. A. McCord; County Clerk, R. B. Terrill; Circuit Clerk, Roy C. White; Assessor, Shelby Taylor; School Superintendent, John Noland; Jailor, N. B. Jones; Coroner, C. D. Samuels.

TURKEYS AT 12 CENTS.

SHARPSBURG, Nov. 16.—The cold weather of the last few days has not damaged anything as there was nothing left to damage, the drought having gotten in its work ahead of Jack Frost.

Turkey buyers are plentiful and a great number of turkeys are being bought and driven to the slaughter pens and are shipped East for the Thanksgiving market. The crop in this county is large and heavy and the buyers are now paying 12 cents per pound on foot.

This will put a large sum of money in the hands of the women of the county who have worked hard to raise their turkeys.

The stock sales continue with prices firm.

WANTED—TURKEYS.

YOUNG BOYS CROWD BROWN-PROCTORIA LOBBY.

Manager Protests and Asks Parents to Keep Boys at Home As They Disaccommodate Guests.

Editor of The Winchester News, Winchester, Ky.:

I know of no better medium through which to reach the parents of Winchester and Clark county than through the columns of your paper and I am therefore sending this communication to you for publication.

The hotel lobby of the Brown-Proctoria Hotel is for the guests of the hotel and adult citizenship of his county. Most every night, and specially on Sunday night, the lobby is crowded with young boys ranging from twelve to eighteen years of age who practically take possession of the lobby and drive the guests of the house to their rooms. These young boys possess themselves of all of the chairs and guests, or those in there in business are compelled to stand or else retire to their rooms, or parlors upstairs. I have requested these young men on numerous occasions of to loaf in and crowd the lobby, but they repeatedly returned and ignore my request.

Last night I was compelled to request some of them to leave the premises, so as to get space, and chairs for the guests of the house. This is a disagreeable duty for me to perform, but as manager of the hotel, I am compelled to provide accommodation and comfort for our guests and those with whom they may have business dealings. It seems that the young men will not stay away upon my request, so I am now writing this to appeal to the parents to see that their children are kept away from the hotel and thus prevent them from lounging around and loafing in the lobby and upon the premises. I feel that if this matter is called to the attention of the parents that they will be willing to assist me in keeping their sons away.

Yours very truly,
WOODSON MOSS,
Manager Brown-Proctoria Hotel.

TURKEYS 13 CENTS ON FOOT.

MT. STERLING, Ky., Nov. 16.—Cattlemen and farmers are in fine spirits over the rains which have fallen over this county during the past week.

Corn shucking still goes merrily on and bushel after bushel is being cribbed in good shape. Different prices are being paid; $3 to $3.25 judged in the field and $3.50 when delivered, with some picked corn at $3.85. In some places early corn is yielding 6 1/2 to 7 bushels per shock, which is exceptionally good. Fodder of early planting is good and has been selling at 25 cents per shock. Late corn did not yield well furnishing in most instances only nubbins.

Turkeys Being Slaughtered.

A great many turkeys are being slaughtered here and the market is high, 13 cents being paid on foot, the highest price in years and there is a scarcity of the fowls. Farmers' wives will hold for the Christmas market when they are confident they will get 15 cents for the birds.
